POLICE ENTERTAINMENT.

Wednesday evening, Nov. 26th, was set apart by the members of F. Troop, N. W. M. P., stationed here for the first presentation of their annual minstrel and dramatic shows, an event which in past years has been eagerly anticipated and very generously participated in by their numerous civilian friends. We feel compelled to say, however, that the excellent character of this troop's efforts hitherto was not reached or maintained on this occasion. This was the opinion expressed by many, and is regrettable, because there is undoubtedly much brilliant talent among those that took part, that were it properly cultivated and trained would produce highly creditable results. We say this not in any way to discourage the performers, but in the hope that a little honest criticism, even though it may be unpalatable, will have the desired effect of spurring them on to a higher standard in future. The programme, which was long and certainly varied enough, opened with a chorus by the minstrel circle and followed by songs and gags by the members, several of which were good, others indifferent and others neither good nor indifferent.

An olio, followed by songs, composed part two. Mr. M. O'Connor (whose first appearance on a Prince Albert stage created a most favorable impression) and Const. Oakden took the parts in the olio, and both did well. The songs of Capt. Norman, Oakden and Tessier also gave good satisfaction, especially that of Const. Oakden, who it may be said does everything he undertakes in good style. Corp. Jones' selection of a recitation was entirely unsuitable for the occasion. Const. Halban's cornet solo was fair and Const. Beeby, who is generally "a foot light favorite," was not up to his proper form for good singing. Part three and the concluding one consisted of a farce entitled "Turn him out," in which Mrs. Norman, Miss McLean, Const. Thompson, Conway and Corp. Jones portrayed the different characters. In this also as throughout the entire programme a woful lack of practice was apparent. This does not apply, however, to the acting of Const. Thompson, whose very fine portrayal of his role as Nicodemus Nobbs, a vendor of juvenile toys, entitles him to rank as a very superior low comedian. Mrs. Porter was the pianist, and Prince Albert people do not need to be informed that the talented lady did all that was required of her thoroughly and well.

THERE IS MUSIC IN THE AIR.

The sacred concert held in the Methodist Church on Friday evening, Nov. 28, was an emphatic success and certainly takes precedence over any similar event of the season. A choice programme of choruses, solos, &c., was smoothly carried out and the generous applause meted out to those who took part indicated plainly that the large audience was thoroughly satisfied and appreciated their efforts. "The standing room only" sign was in requisition, the building being densely packed. The proceeds, which amounted to upwards of $75.00, are to be devoted to the interests of the Methodist Church in Prince Albert. We have not space for a full description of all the numbers on the programme, and such singers as the Misses Hoson, Harkness, Dilworth, and Mrs. Combs, and Messrs. Johnson and Neely are so favorably known to the music loving public that it seems gratuitous to praise their work. As it was however the first appearance in concerts of the Misses McGregor and McKenzie and Mr. and Mrs. Stacey, a passing word of mention is their due. Miss McGregor agreeably surprised even her most intimate acquaintances by her almost perfect rendering of that very pretty song "Only the sound of a voice" was greeted with warm applause. Miss McKenzie, who sang very sweetly "Love's Golden Dream," is the fortunate possessor of an exceptionally well cultivated voice of great compass, the good qualities of which won for her an enthusiastic recall, responding with a pleasing ballad "Dollie's Revenge." Mrs. Stacey's instrumental solos accompanied proved her to be an accomplished pianist and accompanist, and Mr. Stacey deserves praise for his selection so well suited to his powers. It was the expressed wish of those who attended that the few who had not previously appeared in a very public way, together with those before mentioned who have frequently done their share in all good works, would afford many opportunities in future of hearing them and rendering entertainments successful and enjoyable.

The last number of the Dominion Illustrated contains as usual, an excellent variety of engravings and letter press. A charming series of landscape views of the rocky beauties of Muskoka—the sportsman's paradise—deserve special mention, while a couple of fishing scenes at Gaspe are of a similar character. An admirable summary is given of the recent visit to Canada of the members of the iron and steel Institute of Great Britain, to which is added an excellent engraving of the whole party on the steps of the City Hall, Hamilton; while the sad event which so lately occurred at St. John, N. B.—the heroic, though unsuccessful, attempt by Fred Young to rescue a lad from a watery grave—is fully illustrated. The fourth paper of the series on "Historic Canada" is devoted to Fort St. Gabriel, near Montreal. A faithful portrait and sketch of our famous military writer, Lieut. Col. Denison, of Toronto, and a life like picture of the first governor of the Vancouver Cricket Club give much additional interest to the publication. Altogether the number is an excellent one and should be in the hands of all patriotic Canadians. It is published by the S. Biston Lithographic and Publishing Company, Montreal.

OUR BARLEY IN BRITAIN.

Canadian farmers and business men have at present a deep interest in the effort of our Government to secure the British market for Canadian barley. It affords satisfactory assurance that, hurried as the experiment of sending over samples of barley necessarily was, the result has been to produce a distinctly favorable impression in England. The references in the press are encouraging. The declaration of the Times that one of the Ontario samples was suited for making the finest ales, and that in this respect it was superior to the English grown barley is very remarkable. No doubt, as is indicated by the newspapers, the English farmer will be stimulated to greater exertions by the knowledge that he has Canadian competition to meet, but this should be merely an encouragement to our farmers to repeat in the matter of barley the successes of the Canadian cheese industry. There is no reason at all why Canadian barley should not beat the varieties from the valleys of the Danube and from Hungary, and if it is found in the long run to be the best our whole supply can easily be absorbed by the British demand, the imports for 1888 being 47,000,000 bushels. It is largely if not wholly, a question of cultivation, and the suggestions emanating from experienced British growers as to the best methods to be followed deserve, and will undoubtedly receive, the most careful consideration of all concerned.

The fact that among the sealers bringing their catch of skins into Victoria, B. C., was a German vessel, is worthy of note. It suggests one of the difficulties connected with the settlement of the Pacific seal question. No arrangements made between the British and the United States authorities, even with the concurrence of Russia, would bind the other maritime powers in these open seas. Sealers from Germany, France, or even Japan, would not be bound by any such restrictions, and would have the field all to themselves.

The figures of Canada's financial year are hopeful. For the first four months the expenditure is $5,000,000 less than the revenue. The debt is less than it was this time last year.

In this week's issue we publish a short report of Mr. Bett's speech on the school question, which no doubt will be read with interest by his constituents. Mr. Bett's remains true to his principles and the stand taken by him last year on this important question, and we agree with him.

The McKinley tariff is said by our Canadian pessimists to be ruinous to our farmers. Well what farms products are there for which prices are lower than last year? If there are any reductions, how far do they go to counteract the increases?

The characteristic of the Dominion Government is to be awake and active. Postmaster General Haggart's negotiations with the governments of Jamaica, the Leeward islands and Barbadoes for direct parcel post and interchange money orders is a good move. The future increase of trade will be accelerated by the extension of these services.

There is much interest in the return of seal skins brought into Victoria, B. C., this season, the Canadian catch having been considerably larger than last year, while it appears that the larger portion was not obtained in Behring sea, but on the coast to the south. The more light is thrown upon this subject, the more preposterous do the claims of the United States appear.

MR. BETT'S SPEECH

On the School Question.

Mr. Speaker, I have listened most carefully to the remarks of my hon. friend the junior member for Calgary (Cayley), more carefully I assure you than I usually do to the flippant remarks he has been so accustomed to make during the present session, but on this important question, one to which last year the hon. gentleman directed so much of his energy and that ability which no one disputes he does possess, but which he so seldom uses in the right direction, I had hoped that a change in his actions might manifest itself; I am disappointed most unfortunately. Mr. Speaker, I have again to express regret at his action and that of those whom he tells us he is speaking for on this occasion. The position he has assumed, Mr. Speaker, is certainly a cheap way of getting out of a difficulty, but sir I may be justified for saying that the hon. gentleman's (Cayley) actions on this occasion is only on a par with that of his friends when other important questions have been brought before this assembly; he has to-day expressed his determination to swallow his convictions in the interests of the combination of which he now intimates he is the leader. On a previous occasion some of his faithful followers who have the reputation of being strong temperance workers, saw the wisdom of changing their temperance connections, saw the wisdom of stultifying their previous record in this house and by their vote recommended His Honor to continue, if not increase, his issue of beer permits, but sir all these actions do not greatly surprise me. My hon. friend (Cayley) did not hesitate at the opening of this session to intimate to this house that his following were prepared to swallow principles in the interests of the position they had assumed; different principles actuated me. Mr. Speaker I am on the same grounds to-day, in connection with the question, that I occupied twelve months ago. My position was taken then after carefully considering our position. I believed then, as I believe to-day, that in the interests of education, in the interests of our growing population that this important institution in the development of our country should be under local control. If this house, as intimated will be the case, votes down the resolution of my hon. colleague, they will have done so with a full knowledge of the injury they are doing to the best interests of their constituencies and the future of their country, for the hon. member for Wolsey (Richardson) has placed the position squarely and honestly before them, and with the majority must rest the responsibility. By refusing this resolution they not only stultify the record of a year ago, but they place a powerful weapon in the hands of these members of the Dominion Parliament who have already shown opposition to the granting of the powers this resolution asks. I fully realize that the hon. the junior member for Calgary was in a delicate position with his constituents on this question twelve months ago, and I fully realize that he is to-day trying to set himself straight with that same people which condemned him for his actions of last year, but his position should not govern the actions of this house. Twelve months ago this assembly, with no uncertain sound, told the Federal authorities that full control of this important question should be granted us; to-day the hon. gentleman intimates that the majority of this house are ready and willing to announce to the world that they were wrong, that their actions of a year ago were caused by the influences of an hon. member of the Dominion House making a trip through the country and the letters he condescended to write this junior member and my friend (Tweed) to his left that this house will to-day express regret for having passed such a vote. That while they believed my hon. friend (Richardson) was honest in bringing forward a similar resolution last year, to-day they say that no honesty could prompt such action on his part. For getting the interests of their country, forgetting the record of a year ago, these men like the hon. member for Calgary, so it seems, prepared to swallow principle that party may gain and that vicious actions on their part may not be suddenly accompanied by inconsistency as well. Honest temperance legislation, honest agricultural and honest national legislation, have each been introduced by my hon. colleagues this session. All have been thrown aside on the false ground of policy; pernicious principle has been established that no legislation—no matter what its merits may be—no legislation emanating from this side of the house will be accepted, and it has been announced that although this will be their guiding star they on rare occasions are willing to waver, that when personal interest are affected they are willing to bend. That they consider other questions of greater importance than either our schools or temperance and that moralism will be protected by them regardless of what the country may suffer by such protection or the evil results which must follow the neglect. I appeal to the hon. gentlemen in the interests of the country to allay the turbulent feelings which have actuated them so far this session to subside for at least half a day. I appeal to them not to forget the duty they owe to themselves as members of a deliberative body. I appeal to them to take an honest stand on this question, preserve their record of a year ago and assist my hon. colleague in his efforts to secure for this Assembly control of one of the most important questions affecting our future. Our stand last year, if followed up, is bound to secure us the results we should all desire. Let no member of this house, for selfish motives, dare to stultify the record then made. Mr. Bett's closed an interesting speech amid cheers.

GOVERNMENT TELEGRAPHS

What was Done in the Gulf During the Past Season.

During the past summer Mr. Gisborne, general superintendent, laid a new ozok-erited India rubber insulated cable, (manufactured at the Henly company's works, London), between Mechezie Bay at the north west end of Anticosti and Long Point, near Minigau on the north shore of the St. Lawrence, some 600 miles below Quebec. It was while laying this cable from the steamship Newfield, at a seven knot speed, that Joseph McDonald when in the tank on duty, stumbled and was instantly caught by the cable and drawn through the space, only 55 inches wide, between the cone and a rigid ring circling, known as the crinoline or guard, which prevents the cable from flying around the inner circumference of the tank to the great danger of the men in it. Although the unfortunate man's scalp was torn open, his chest crushed and a leg and two or three ribs broken he is now out of danger, and will be fit for duty as soon as his leg bones are united. The immediate application of powerful brakes snapped the cable apart, but after landing the sufferer at Gaspé Basin it was duly recovered and is now connected by fourteen miles of additional land line with English Bay, Anticosti. Having due regard to the probable present condition, as hereinafter explained, of the cable between the south west point of Anticosti and Gaspé, the Minister of Public Works with his usual foresight, approved of this duplicate connection with the north shore system, which now terminates at Point aux Esquimaux and will probably be extended another 100 miles to Natashquan, Labrador, next year.

The final most desirable point to reach in the Gulf is Greenly Island, in the Straits of Bell Isle, whence sooner or later, a direct Canadian cable will cross the Atlantic to Great Britain.

The steamship Newfield next proceeded to the Magdalen Islands, Mr. Hartley Gisborne (son of the gen. superintendent and resident district superintendent in the North-west Territory), being in charge of the electrical department. The damaged Bird Rock cable, manufactured by the India Rubber Gutta-percha & Telegraph Works company, London, and laid in 1880, was taken up in sections, for although practically as sound as when submerged ten years ago, wherever embedded in sand or ooze, the outer galvaniz- ed iron wires, hemp and asphalt covered, were entirely corroded away when the cable rested upon rock and seaweed. The same result has doubtless taken place in the Anticosti and Gaspé cable which was also laid in 1880. Hence the value of the additional cable route via the North Shore,—for the cost of construction and maintenance of the Gulf service (as will be seen in Mr. Gisborne's report to the Minister of Public Works) is but a small percentage of the gain to the whole of Canadian marine insurance premiums alone, to say nothing of the humanitarian aspect of the service. It was, therefore, with regret and after ten years experience, that the Government approved of the abandonment of the Bird Rock connection with the Magdalen group in favor of a connection between St. Paul's island and Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. Bird rock is probably unique in danger and difficulties for cable connection. It is less than seven acres in superficial area with sheer or over hanging cliffs varying from 110 to 440 feet in altitude, the shallow (2 to 5 fathoms) waters resting upon extended flat rocks, covered by huge boulders which move during heavy gales or under running ice. Thus eight seasons out of ten the cable was rendered inoperative just when it would have been most useful in signaling to passing shipping the position and position of the great fields of ice traversing the Gulf during April and May. Sixteen knots (20 nautical miles) of the old cable having been recovered, the Newfield then with four knots additional of new cable relaid it between Meat Cove station, Cape Breton and St. Paul's island, whence it is now operated by telephone. That the many splices were skillfully made is best attested by the fact that the insulation remained intact, although the cable was freely spoken through the cable.

Finally the Newfield proceeded to the Bay of Fundy, where the Grand Manan and Campbell's cable, injured by a vessel's anchor was duly repaired, all corroded portions being cut out and a new cable connection made with Cheny and White Head Islands on the Grand Manan group.

It now remains to connect the Straits of Belle Isle and that "graveyard" of the Atlantic, Sable Island, with the telegraph system. When that is done, the high enclaves lately expressed by Sir George Baden-Powell, M.P., upon the efficiency and value of the Telegraph and Signal service of the Dominion.

GENERAL NEWS.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—Col. Powell, Adj. General of the militia, returned home via the Soo line yesterday from Winnipeg and has already reported to the Minister with reference to his inspection of mounted infantry. Of certain matters in the nature of complaints Col. Powell declines to say anything; he states, however, that the barrack building occupied by the men is not well adapted for their comfort and recommends the erection of a new building, and the demolition of the old huts of Fort Osborne. He also recommends certain changes in the uniform of corps, but is well pleased with the smart soldier-like appearance of the men.

Liverpool, Nov. 22.—At a meeting of the chamber of commerce yesterday Sir George Baden Powell, member of parliament, in a speech said that the new United States tariff law has given a great impetus to Canadian industries. He thought Canada wise in developing her over sea trade. In speaking of her valuable natural resources, he said that Canada offered many opportunities for the investment of British capital, because he believed there would not be the same financial vagaries there that had characterized American government and legislation.

Midland, Nov. 23.—One of the boilers in Peter & Cain's sawmill exploded to day going through the roof of the boiler house and moving two other boilers twenty feet. The boiler coming down on a man named Graham and a plank, the latter saving Graham's life. Two men were blown into the bay and another was blown some distance, but all escaped with severe bruises.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—Judgement was given by Justice McMahon Saturday morning in the appeal against the order of the Master in Chancery that the plaintiff should find a security of the costs in the libel suit of Greame vs. the Globe. McMahon confirmed the judgement of the master.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—The Medical-Chirurgical Society has decided to send two representatives to Berlin to study the process of Dr. Koch's famous lymph and investigate the method of its application.

Orillia, Nov. 23.—Charles Jacobs, of Rama, the best known Indian in this district, was drowned while attempting to cross over from Orillia to Rama, while under the influence of liquor.

Halifax, Nov. 22.—The steamship Canada, which left London 21 days ago bound for New York, put in here this morning short of coal. She had experienced tempestuous weather.

Kingston, Nov. 23.—Nicholas Seratch, was struck in the abdomen, in a gas well by a pipe wrench which slipped from its fastening, and died shortly after.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—Samuel Rolins, a wealthy farmer of Rolins's Hill, suicided yesterday by taking Paris Green. He was subject to insane spells.

Vaudreuil, Que., Nov. 23.—Charolotte, independent Conservative, has been elected for the local for Vaudreuil by a majority.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 23.—A ten year old child of Sydney Johnston drank oil of tansy last night and died this morning.

St. Louis, Nov. 23.—Lake O'Reilly, while intoxicated, entered the saloon of Herman Schmitt in South St. Louis, last evening. He demanded beer, and while it was being served quarrelled with Schmitt. Joe Schmitt, a son of the proprietor, entered at this moment and took up the quarrel on behalf of his father. O'Reilly drew his revolver and shot young Schmitt dead. A crowd gathered quickly and attempted to lynch the murderer. He was dragged to a lamp post, a rope was procured, and it was only by a hard fight that the policemen got possession of the prisoner.

Washington, Nov. 23.—The report of the third assistant postmaster general, which will be submitted in a few days, will show an increase of ten per cent in postal revenue. The anti lottery law has caused a noticeable decrease in the revenue of the New Orleans postoffice, and the business of the postoffices at Kansas City, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Chicago are close together in the amount of postal business done by each.

New York, Nov. 22.—The financial crisis which has dominated Wall Street for the past ten days can almost safely be said to have been passed. Today the feeling was one of confidence. Money was easy and accommodations could be had in plenty at five per cent, while stocks received further improvement on yesterday's sharp rally.

Paris, Nov. 23.—According to the Martin, the new French loan of seven hundred million francs will be issued January 1st, 1891.

The Hague, Nov. 23.—The King of Holland died at six o'clock this morning. His illness took a sudden turn for the worse yesterday evening, symptoms of uræmia appearing. Queen Emma was at once summoned and remained with her husband until his death. The King's last hours were peaceful, life ebbing away. Immediately upon the announcement of the sad event, the palace and other public buildings were closed and notices were posted of the cancellation of all amusements. The Ministers were summoned and held a council at noon.

Monday W. H. Perry, of Violet, celebrated his eightieth birthday and was surprised by his children in a marked way. They had arranged to honor the event, and with their children, drove to his house reaching there within sixteen minutes of each other. Six children and sixteen grandchildren were present. The eldest daughter living some distance away was unable to attend, but sent a tender and loving letter. Among the children of the venerated farmer are Mrs. W. A. Rickwell, of Kingston, and Major Perry, of the North-West mounted police both of whom joined in the day's merriment. The surprise was great to the patriarch who had not the least suspicion of what was coming. He is still hale and active, and gives promise of living a long time yet. He thoroughly enjoyed the family gathering.
